

October 11, 2016

To Whom It May Concern:

I write this letter to offer my strong recommendation and support of Mr. Greg Quinlan. Based on all that I know of him, he would be a tremendous asset to your team, and do a great job in representing you.

I have known Greg for seven years, working with him as a colleague on child safety measures in New Jersey. And in the more than 40 states in which I have worked in on such issues, there are few child advocates with more energy or passion than Greg. These traits, combined with his strong leadership, accounts for his great success in shepherding a series of child safety measures through the New Jersey legislature.

Our signature piece of legislation, “Jessica’s Law,” calls for 25-years to life prison sentences for certain sex crimes committed against children under the age of 13. This legislation saw many iterations, had organized opposition, and faced an uphill battle over many years. It was Greg’s creativity and understanding of the importance of non-partisan coalition building that allowed the legislation to eventually be enacted and signed into law. This drive will lead him to great success in all he does.

I would be remiss if I did not mention Greg’s dedication to families in New Jersey and everywhere. He has served in a variety of positions within his Church, has represented New Jersey at national conferences—including the Conservative Political Action Committee, for which I formerly directed—and is someone I have called on many times over the years to get his opinion on issues affecting families before the legislature.

I hope I have effectively described just how diligent Greg is, as he is one of those too-rare of a person who if he says he will do something you do not need to think twice about whether it will be done. Besides being a colleague, I consider Greg a friend. He is honorable, honest, and caring—traits that I look for in a friend, but that will also serve him well in business.

Should you need to speak with me further, it would be my pleasure to answer any questions.

Sincerely,

Stacie D. Rumenap
President